Three Victoria Photographers Selected for Team Canada

Three photographers from the Victoria Camera Club will represent Canada in the annual Four Nations Photography competition. The Canadian team includes 80 images from 80 photographers across Canada. These images are selected by the Canadian Association for Photographic Art (CAPA).

Every year photographers from Australia, Canada, New Zealand and South Africa compete in the Four Nations competition. Three independent judges from the UK or the US will judge all 320 images. The winning nation will be announced in July/August. Canada has been the winner for the past four years.

The three Team Canada members from Victoria are Leah Gray, Daniel Rondeau, and Mike Wooding. Their competition images are shown below.
