Through discussions and exploratory assignments we'll discover fun and intriguing subjects that inspire us to generate new images.

From single hits to multi-image series', exploring photographic projects provides excitement for the photographer looking to develop their style. In this course you'll learn methodologies to uncover your 'look' and define your signature work. As well, you'll determine structures to set-up a personalized framework for moving forward.

Whether your projects are individual succinct images, or long-term explorations, there are strategies for initiating and maintaining ideas and momentum. Throughout the course we'll look at how other photographers "get their work out there" as a source of inspiration. And you'll be presented with ways to seek out resources to establish a foundation to sustain your projects beyond the course. Andrea will schedule one-on-one meetings with each participant.
